AT MYERS THEATRE.
Tonight will be shown one of the best Gold Seal pictures ever brought to this city. It is a three-act feature picture entitled "Misjudged," with Herbert Rawlinson, the Universal's favorite star, in the title role. There will also be shown two other high class pictures, making a diversified bill of unusual excellence.
Tomorrow morning and evening, will be shown a four-act feature picture "Coral," featuring Marie Wadsworth and Wellington Player. There will also be shown two other very good pictures. The same popular prices will be in force as usual.

LITTLE BROTHER OF RICH A FINE PLAY

Picturization of Jos. MacMill Patter-son's Book Seen at Myers.
If future Broadway productions of the Universal company are up to the standard set by the first one, "The Little Brother of the Rich," which was presented yesterday at the Myers, they will be deserving of immense patronage.
As a book "The Little Brother of the Rich" was a great success. As a play, it is a tremendous hit. It was most adequately and sumptuously mounted and presented with a star cast.
Robert Bosworth, that eminent dramatic actor, played the part of Leamington, the actor, who, after losing all through drink, reforms and wins success and Sylvia's love. Paul Potter, the little brother of the rich, was impersonated by Robert Henley. As a popular college hero, he receives a social position, wealth, and the friendship of a "little brother" from rich, as long as he remains at the University. He is Novak, Novak's daughter, who wins a theatrical triumph along with Leamington.
The play's success could not have been found for these parts than the above mentioned favorites. They put realism and power behind their acting that went far toward making the play a success.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Sept. 20.—G. Barsness of Black Earth visited friends in the city Sunday.
James Lepore, yard man for the C. & N. St. Paul R. R. at Madison, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lorenzo over Sunday.
Emil Griep was arrested yesterday and was taken to Janesville charged with a statutory offense.
The high school is eagerly anticipating the first test of the football team next Saturday when the team meets the Janesville high school in this city. The squad is the most promising Edgerton has had in years, and under the coaching of Lamoreau, Gifford and Lewis the squad is rapidly rounding into shape. Local people should show the team all possible interest and give it all encouragement.
William Dickinson, Miss Kittie Nichols and Mr. and Mrs. Alan T. Barie motored to Lake Geneva yesterday.
Mr. and Mrs. John Bowen left for Chicago Saturday for a visit at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Robert Mannard.
Miss Irene Burry left for her home in Monroe Saturday after an extended visit at the home of her brother, F. M. Burry.
Wave Spinwall was a Janesville caller on Saturday.
Miss Catherine Cullen spent Saturday in Whitewater.
Mrs. Washburn of Racine spent Sunday as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ash.
Will Atwell returned Saturday from a trip to the city.
Miss Spike spent Sunday as a guest of Mr. Fred Mapson at Milton Junction.
Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kathan and daughter, Lucie, of Jefferson, motored and spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Doty.
Mrs. A. P. Minton of St. Paul returned to her home today after a visit at the home of her uncle Mr. R. Wesendonk.
Lament Girard of Madison was an over Sunday visitor at the home of his mother, Mrs. Girard.
Hugh Flarity of Janesville visited friends in the city Sunday.
Miss Rose Morrissey of Janesville and brother Henry of Milwaukee spent Sunday at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morrissey.
Devine was taken suddenly ill Sunday morning and was taken to the Mercy hospital in Janesville for an X-ray examination. At this writing his condition is much improved.
Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Troup returned to their home in Chicago today after spending the summer at the home of Mrs. Troup's mother, Mrs. Pat Quigley.
Lloyd Severson of Stoughton spent Sunday visiting friends in the city.
Attorney Martin has moved his family into the Dr. Stillman house on Washington street which he recently purchased from Mr. Underhill and Mr. Deane.
Speaker Lawrence Whittelet and son Lowell went to Madison this morning. Lowell will re-enter the University of Wisconsin this fall.
Norman Carle and family of Janesville motored through the city yesterday.
Russell Pyre of Madison visited his mother and brother here over the weekend. Russell is employed by La Follette's Magazine in Madison.
Ray McCann, Ed. Sweeney, Charles McIntosh, Harry Shearer, Willard Sumner, Glen Gardner, Francis Curran and several others of last year's High School football class went to Madison this morning to enter the University of Wisconsin.
James Legrand of Stoughton spent Sunday as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Conroy at Madison.
A good many people from Edgerton and Janesville and surrounding country motored to Fulton Sunday to view the wreck of the Fulton dam. It does not seem possible that the water could have been possible for so much damage.
Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Thompson entertained at a six o'clock dinner Saturday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Troup.
Miss Bernadine Gerard left yesterday for Evanston, Ill., where she will matriculate at Northwestern University for a course in oratory and physical sciences. Her brother Lamont Gerard accompanied her on the trip.
Albert Otto was a Janesville caller Saturday.
Nellie Bentley was a Stoughton visitor Saturday.
Mrs. J. S. Grubb of Mauston and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Merrill of Hanover, N. H., are visiting at the home of their son and brother Paul Grubb.
Earl C. Sherman of Philadelphia, Pa., was a weekend visitor at the home of Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Roberts.
Mrs. Mary Sherman of Philadelphia, a sister of Mrs. R. W. Roberts, arrived Friday from the east and will spend the winter with Mr. Roberts.
C. H. Babcock and Miss Mabel Strassburg motored to Geneva Sunday.
Andrew Soverhill and daughter of Newark, N. Y., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Parley.
J. L. Holtman and family motored to Lake Geneva yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. McChesney and George Dail. The transfer will be accomplished immediately an inventory is completed.

FROSTS PREDICTED TONIGHT OR TUESDAY

Special Government Forecast Indicates Cold Wave is Due in Wisconsin Tonight and Tomorrow.
There will be frosts in Rock county tonight or tomorrow night, according to a special government prediction, while other sections of the state may be hit by the cold wave of a certainty tonight.
The following special forecast was received at the postoffice this morning from Forecaster Cox of Chicago: "Frost is indicated tonight in the tobacco regions of the west portion of the state. Conditions are a bit doubtful in the southern and central portions, but frosts are possible. They are quite likely, however, Tuesday night."

DISCUSSES PROBLEM OF WAR FINANCES

A. B. Leach, Head of Investment Bankers, Analyzes Situation at Convention in Denver.
Denver, Colo., Sept. 20.—The problem of American finance, as affected by the European war, was discussed here today at the opening of the convention of the Association of Bankers of America, by A. B. Leach of New York, president of the association.
The speaker also devoted some time to railroad securities, public service companies and "blue sky" regulations. Touching war finance, he said:
"As investment bankers, we face the problem, that the capital which has been expended for that purpose in this country, will not be available. We therefore must devise ways and means to furnish money for these developments of the most capital. This is a broad opportunity, it is a great responsibility, but I feel that the investment bankers will measure up to it, not only so we will serve the country successfully and profitably, but so we shall find success in our business."
"Again, there will be resold to this country in enormous volumes, the securities of the war, securities which have been placed in Europe. We could not have them presented to us at a better time. Never before in the history of the world have securities been in position where they could be absorbed and repurchased as they have today; it will make probably, not a creditor nation, but certainly a nation much nearer to financial independence. The interest and dividend monies which have been going to the other side will be paid to our own people in a larger measure than before."
"We also face the problem as to what will be the price of money, the return on bonds and stock investments. After the close of the war, the return on these investments will be reduced to a point which is now being used in Europe to finance the war, will have to be redeemed, and we will get back to a gold basis. The successful return of the war, is difficult to prophesy, but I believe that this reconstruction period will be faced by the American investment public with a smaller loss and that we will come out of this war with a stronger financial position in the world. I have heard it prophesied by the very wise, that at the end of the war we would face a financial catastrophe, that wreckage and repudiation would be the result. I do not believe this. This regeneration work in business, this calling in of credits will be gradual, the nations must face a long period of reconstruction. Europe will not repudiate its indebtedness, Europe will be able to pay, and if we must bear a share of the terrific destruction, I believe that America will come out richer and stronger financially and business position than ever before."
Mr. Leach questioned the value of physical valuation of railroads, remarking that the report will be obsolete by the time it was completed.
"I could name a long list of railroads which have fallen by the wayside and are in the hands of receivers," he said. "And although I will agree with the most radical as to the mistakes or errors—and crimes, if you will—that have been committed in the handling of some of these properties, I will say to you nevertheless, that today is the time to forget, let us leave the past behind and forget what has been done."
"Blue sky" laws, the speaker asserted, have in many instances been made so broad that they impede legitimate investments. Public service commissions, he thought, were prone to grant lower rates in times of war. As with the railroads, he opined that the public service commissions pay too much attention to physical valuations in basing rates of return on investments.

HIGH WATER IN LAKES MENACE SUMMER HOMES

High water in the Madison lakes, especially Lakes Kegonsa and Waubesa, is causing extensive damage to summer homes and other property on the shores. A number of Janesville residents whose cottages at Janesville menaced plan to go to Stoughton on Tuesday evening to meet with other property owners to discuss some means of lowering the water level. The draining of the marshes which formerly formed a reservoir in the vicinity of the lakes now blamed for the unusual height of the water during the entire past summer.

ERB HAS EXCELLENT CHANCE OF SURVIVING POISON DOSE
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Sept. 20.—Newman Erb was today reported to have an excellent chance of recovery from the effects of two poison tablets he swallowed by mistake last Thursday. Mr. Erb, at his summer home at Deal, N. J., is now passing through the final hours of the critical period in this form of poisoning. The four physicians attending the financier report he is not suffering any pain or discomfort that his pulse and temperature are normal and that unless a further marked symptoms indicating the presence of a considerable quantity of poison in his system within the next eight hours, he undoubtedly will recover.

RUSSIANS FIGURED TO ABANDON POLAND IN BEFORE WAR PLAN

Evacuation of Poland Was Decided Upon by Russia in 1910 in Case of War With Germany.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Petrograd, Sept. 20.—The evacuation of Poland was decided upon by Russia in 1910, declares the Russian military organ, in a discussion of the general staff's before-the-war plans for the defense of the Western frontier.
"Before the war," says the journal, "Russia anticipated that in the event of war Austria and Germany, because of their rapid means of mobilization and immense technical resources, would turn their attention first against Russia. To frustrate this plan it was decided in 1910 that the Russian territory jutting into Germany and the fortified places west of Breslau could not be organized for a state of war. The region further east was chosen for the concentration of the Russian forces."
"It would have been dangerous to attribute to the Russian general staff and to have held on to the Narew and Vistula, with their fortified towns. It is better to take advantage of the depth of our theatre of war to draw the German armies far from their base and to force them to exhaust themselves. To this end it was necessary to sacrifice the Polish salient. Three months have elapsed since the Russian army started to put this plan into execution. Constant marches, fighting and privations weaken the enemy. There are already evidences that the moral force of the German army is weakening in its attack, and it is not only that this weakening is not only not a physical, but a moral one."
"This war will be decided by the armies in battle, and it is of no importance where this battle will take place. Where our retreat assures us victory, for our armies are now beginning to develop, while an abundance of munitions of war awaits us in the near future, thanks to the mobilization of the national industry and to the order placed abroad, whereas for the moment the enemy is in a favorable position in this regard."
"A glance backward shows that at the beginning of the war the Germans threw the mass of their army against France. This leap forward on their part had happy results for us, for we advanced into enemy territory, notably in Galicia; now the tables are turned. However, it is impossible to hamper the liberty of movement of the Russian army in any particular region or on any particular frontier, and it would be impracticable to wage a campaign in defending fortified towns which are none too safe, as the Austrians did in Przemyśl. That is why, examining, for a year of war, the map of the Russian front, we see the necessity for the living Russian army to manoeuvre and deploy on their base line. This would be the most useful of the situation which has prevailed since the month of April."
"At the present time we have against us nearly all the German cavalry, nearly all the Austrian army, man forces—about 70 divisions—and the enemy artillery has hundreds of guns of all calibres. The Russian army is offering a heroic resistance; most heroic standing up under the most heaviest bombardment, the countless losses upon the enemy's side, wearing him out, notwithstanding his technical perfection. We are getting nearer to our supplies of ammunition, our line and throw back the enemy. If only for this reason, we can expect that the evacuation of Warsaw, the evacuation of the Vistula-Lvovsk-Novogorod line, will make certain that the Russian offensive at a time will be definite and irresistible."
"At the threshold of the second year of war Russia has the most definite plan for the issue of the campaign, while maintaining at the same time the firm resolution to wage this fight to a victorious end."

JAPANESE CRUISERS SEARCH FOR GERMAN SHIPS IN SOUTH SEAS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Tokio, Sept. 20.—Owing to persistent reports that armed German merchant ships have been sighted in the South Seas, the Japanese navy has dispatched several fast cruisers to search the waters of the southern Pacific. Advice from Australia placed one of these German ships in the Eastern Pacific in the neighborhood of the entrance to the Panama canal, where she was supposed to be waiting to prey upon merchantment of the line.
Rear Admiral Suzuki, vice minister of marine, explains the dispatch of warships as a measure of precaution. As a matter of fact, he said the navy scarcely credited the reports, but wanted to make certain that shipping was safe in the Orient. About fifty German vessels were tied up in various neutral ports in the South seas. If properly armed, at least thirty of them could do active service as volunteer warships. It is not possible that one or two had escaped.

Nemo Self-Reducing Corset No. 326 at $3.00

This model meets the requirements of a great host of women and steadily grows in popularity.
It has the Nemo "Lastcurve Back" deep gores of Lastcurve cloth alongside of and extending far below the back steels. This feature gives a long skirt, a high degree of pliability, which insures ease in any position.
To prevent wrinkling or rolling up, light flexible steel wires are introduced into the elastic section below the back steels.

HIGH ELEVEN PLAYS EDGERTON SATURDAY IN OPENING CLASH

Coach Dutcher Retires as to Whom He Will Play at Tobacco City.—Madison Here in November.

Full interest is centered by the high school students this week on the opening clash of the local gridiron season Saturday at Edgerton, when the Tobacco City aggregation will meet the Edgerton eleven. The Edgerton eleven last fall in this city is well remembered, and practically the same team back it is doubtful what the blue and white can do with a comparatively new squad. It is believed, however, that Coach Dutcher is working on the road to victory and students are optimistic that their favorites will win the first combat Saturday.

To date no team has been picked, and no one will know what the lineup will be until the two teams line up for the back-off Saturday. Dutcher is working his men hard, and only the seven men who show up the best in practice will be used. Students will stress at the lineup and will come close in some thinking, but the excitement is to be in doubt until ten minutes before the opening whistle.

Madison Coming Here.

Janesville is already laying plans for the big game with Madison. It is expected some time in November. Madison developed a new rivalry in Janesville since the refusal of the upstate team to meet the local eleven in the state honors were the rivalry for the blue team. Madison has a new team and expects to be the best in the state to be done by Dutcher's men before the Madison bunch can be vanquished.

MILLERS WON 4TH PENNANT SATURDAY

Pongo Cantillon Clinches Rag in Association.—Moline Wins in the Three I League.

On Sunday's games in the National League, the Boston Braves are today tied with Brooklyn, four and a half games behind the Phillies, who split a double yesterday with St. Louis. The American league games were idle Sunday, but Boston went up a notch over Detroit Saturday when they downed the Tigers one to nothing in a historic pitching battle for 12 innings. The Cubs slid down into seventh place Sunday when the Giants wallowed them 7 to 1. New York is at the bottom of the National and are but sixteen and a half games from the pennant race.

Saturday Joe Cantillon clinched his fourth American association pennant when the Minneapolis team defeated the Louisville team 2 to 1. Much credit is given to the scrappy "Pongo" for the bringing of the Millers to the top within two months' time. The championship Millers split with Cleveland Saturday and Eddie Gharitty closed his Association experience with three hits in the second game and got two doubles.

Alexander Wins. St. Louis, Sept. 20.—After Alexander had won his twenty-ninth game by defeating St. Louis, 1 to 2, in the first game of a double-header here today, Ames pitched his teammates to a 1-to-0 victory over Philadelphia, allowing them but one hit in ten innings.

In the first game the locals gained four hits off Alexander, but they lost the fourth and two in the eighth, combined with infield errors, gave the locals their two runs. Robinson was hit for three doubles, which were responsible for the visitors' six runs. Ames' game was almost perfect. The lone hit off him was a pop single to center by Whitted in the eighth. Only three men reached first base, but three reached first base, not one getting to second. Chalmers lost his own game when with one out in the tenth Hughes singled and went to third on a wild pitch, Bescher's single to right scored him.

Moline Wins. Davenport, Iowa, Sept. 20.—Moline won today's game 2 to 0, giving his three out of four contests so far in the "Three I" league championship series. Elinor Moline's twirler, recently purchased by the Chicago White Sox, was the whole works in today's game. He allowed the locals but three hits and scored one of Moline's two runs with a two-sacker in the eighth. Wells pitched effective ball for Davenport and aside from two errors was invincible. With double admission charged the players shared in the receipts. The attendance was 2,379.

WORK SOON TO START ON NEW ATHLETIC FIELD.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—Work was expected to be started today on Wisconsin University's new athletic field at Camp Randall. One side of the stadium will be formed into a grand stand, the land sloping sharply toward the level field thus allowing construction work with a minimum of grading. One of the criticisms of the present athletic field has been that the sun was always in the eyes of the players who faced the west in the afternoon. To avoid this, the new field will be laid out north and south.

Chief Bender, Russel Ford, George Mullen and other pitchers may have passed on, but old Cy Barger still pitches for the Pittsburgh Federals and wins a good share of his games.

RED SOX CONTINUE VICTORIES SUNDAY

Defeat White Sox by Score of 5 to 4 at Fair Grounds.—Kakuske Hurts Game for Winners.

Sunday afternoon the youthful Red Sox humbled the older and more experienced White Sox team at the Association Park by the score of 5 to 4 in nine innings of close baseball. It was not until two outs in the ninth inning that the game was decided as the White Sox battled to overcome a three run lead obtained by the Red Sox in the first inning. This is the eighteenth straight victory for the Red Sox, who are easily the best young team in southern Wisconsin and champions of the section in their class.

Herb Kakuske hurled for the Red Sox unit and in the ninth inning victory looked dubious, and "Buck" Berger took up the mound duties. Young Kakuske in a few years' time will be a finished pitcher for while he is only sixteen years of age, he has good form, speed, fair curves and a baseball head one would not expect on so young a player. But the entire Red Sox line are skilled players, well balanced and know the game from all angles. It would be hard to pick a team who could beat them with players of their own age.

"Buck" Berger started hurling for the White Sox and after the bumping the first inning, went sailing along until relieved by Joe Ryan. A walk to Robert, Jackson's and Miller's hits followed by a safe slam by Kakuske, put the three run lead across. The White Sox scored in the third, when Sullivan walked, stole both second and third, and scored on a passed ball. The Red Sox stole one in the seventh when two were down on errors. A hit by Matt Ryan tied the count for the White Sox in the eighth and in the ninth the losers were unable to fathom Berger. In the ninth Kakuske walked and Spohn singled. On the play to catch Spohn the winning run scored. The teams will play again Sunday. Line-up: Red Sox—Spohn, c.; Kakuske, 2b.; Jackson, ss.; Robert, Marshall, 3b.; Sullivan, 1b.; French, 1b.; Ryan, 2b.; Stewart, ss.; M. and J. Ryan, 2b.; Fleming, Kennedy and Britt, fielders.

White Sox—McCue, c.; M. Ryan and J. Ryan, p.; French, 1b.; Sullivan, 2b.; Stewart, ss.; M. and J. Ryan, 2b.; Fleming, Kennedy and Britt, fielders.

Garry Cravath of the Phillies has made twenty-one homers to date, but the chances of his fracturing or equaling either the ancient or modern home run record held by Buck Freeman and Wildfire Schulte respectively aren't very good. Cravath makes most of his homers on his own grounds. Last year he didn't make a single home run outside of Philadelphia. And this season he has made but three on foreign fields. The Phillies have but three more games to play at home before the season closes.

DOPE ON CONFERENCE RACE IS UNCERTAIN

Question if Illinois Will be Able to Repeat in the Big Nine This Year.—Minnesota Looks Good.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Chicago, Sept. 20.—The dull thud of the booted pigskin was the dominant note in the middle western sporting world today for coaches of the nine universities composing the Western Conference took charge of their squads for the first time. At all of the schools preliminary practice has been held for several weeks but today the coaches were permitted by the Conference rules to go on the field for the first practice.

The question that loomed highest today was whether Illinois, champions of 1914, will repeat. With almost a veteran team, little Zuppke, the "football wizard of the West," will attempt to do what no other Big Nine team with the exception of Minnesota has ever done—win the championship two successive years.

The cloud on the horizon of the Sucker school, according to the best stories emanating from Campagna, is ineligibility. However, Zuppke asserts that none of his men will be out on account of poor grades. Pogue, all-american half back and candidate for the all-american, and Posty Clark, his fellow star, will form the nucleus of this year's Illinois machine.

If the reason brings defeat to the Illini, early season dope gives Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Chicago the preference for the title. Minnesota grew steadily stronger as the season advanced last year. With a large squad of old men back it appears that Coach Williams' eleven must be counted in the fight. No Big Nine title is ever settled without Wisconsin being a factor. Led by Coach Juneau the Badgers are doped as much stronger than last year when they tied with Chicago for third place. Chicago is the lone Big Nine team that appears weaker. The Maroons lost Des Jardien and Gray last year but the loss of stars has yet to damp Coach Stagg. If the hard luck—you must call it such—which pursued Iowa last year is made turn, the Hawkeyes with their powerful and bewildering plays that spread across the entire gridiron will be worthy foes of any school. Purdue is not doped to rise much above the fifth place which it held last year, for as yet no one has been found to take the place of Oliphant, now a mainstay of the Army eleven. Coach Wiley of Ohio State found eight of his regulars gone at the start of practice today and appears in sore straits.

Not less bright than is the outlook for the Big Nine leaders is the outlook for the two talented teams of last year, Northwestern and Indiana. Both led by Yale men changed their style last year to an adapted Eastern form. Of course both suffered for a year but this year the Conference is looking with interest and some fear on the products of Murphy at Northwestern and Childs at Indiana. The announcement that Jim Thorpe, the famous Indian athlete, will assist Childs at Indiana has sent the Hoosier stock several points higher.

ing themselves on the gridiron. Allen Dearborn and Robert Hara, both freshmen at Carroll, and graduated from the Janesville high school last June, are in training with hopes of gaining places on the college squad this fall.

Both men are showing up good. Dearborn was a star halfback on the high school team for two years, while Hara played fullback last fall. It is reported Hara is out for the line, with Dearborn working for a halfback job. "Eddie" Atwood is sure of playing end again this year, as he is one of Carroll's dependable men. Coach Frier is preparing strenuously for the Michigan "Aggie" game and the Lawrence struggle.

The General Says:

I believe in men. Organization is as important as money or mills to an industry. Know-why and know-how are essential to any success. Every one of us has to acknowledge that the same sort of military preparedness that fits a nation for its defense is the most effective principle in making an industry of any kind serviceable and profitable both to manufacturer and consumer.

This great roofing organization is trained like an army

Three enormous mills—officered and manned by the best-trained force ever enlisted in an industrial army—three huge factories that are run like clockwork—Military exactness in the securing and selection of raw material, and in every step from then on until the finished product is distributed and sold—Constant readiness—being prepared every minute for the work to be done the next—Right there you have your finger on the great, essential reasons for the unfailing satisfaction every user finds in

Certain-teed Products

Certain-teed Roofing simply has no superior. It is the best roofing that can be made by anybody anywhere, and we are justified in saying that it is the best made in the world. We guarantee the one-ply for five years, two-ply for ten years, and three-ply for fifteen years.

And that guarantee means the minimum life of Certain-teed Roofing. It will outlive its guarantee, you may believe.

We also make Standard Quality and Competition Quality at lower prices. If you want a cheaper roofing, that cannot bear the Certain-teed Guarantee, you can get it of us—and get a better value, too.

A manufacturer's guarantee is worth just as much as that manufacturer's standing and history indicate. The General Roofing Company is the largest institution of its kind in the world. It has a bigger and better equipment than any other concern in the business. When it began business, roofing cost two or three times as much as it does today—and wasn't of as high quality. In other words the General has raised quality and lowered prices—and today out of every five rolls of roofing sold one of them bears the Certain-teed label, and the General's sales represent 30% of the total volume of all makes of asphalt roofings and building papers.

So we look back at the past with satisfaction and we look ahead to the future with confidence. And we want every dealer in and user of our products to share that satisfaction and confidence, because we know we have the plants, the men and the goods to justify every bit of it.

Your dealer will show you the Certain-teed Label. It means just as much to him as it does to you.

GASOLINE GALORE.

The Standard Oil company of Indiana at the present time is turning out more than 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline a day. By next spring, when new facilities are ready, the output will be increased to 1,500,000 gallons a day. Because of extensive additions and improvements made to the company's plants, which involved an expenditure of $10,000,000, the output of earnings, that rate of production can be increased if demand makes it necessary.

Present stocks of gasoline at the company's three refineries and principal storage points amount to 1,500,000 barrels of 50 gallons each, or 75,000,000 gallons.

There was a time, not so long ago, when the prediction was made that it would soon be necessary to find a substitute for gasoline as the demand was increasing so rapidly that the supply would soon be exhausted, but science came to the relief of the situation and today, under what is known as the Burton system, refiners are extracting from crude oil forty per cent of gasoline, and it is being sold the country over, cheaper than ever before.

The motive power of the greatest war in history is gasoline, yet in spite of the heavy foreign demand, our American refiners are able to supply it, and at the same time protest the home market. Nature's great resources are never exhausted and so in times of stress some key is found to unlock the hidden treasures, and the tide flows on to bless humanity.

The Indiana Oil company recently advanced the price of gasoline one cent a gallon, owing to a heavy advance in the price of crude oil, and not for the purpose of cutting another er melon, as many critics imagine. The development of this great industry requires both capital and brains, and it is well to remember that in spite of the corrupt corporations which produce the two necessities, oil and sugar, that the price of both, to the consumer, have maintained a steady low level for twenty years or more.

FINANCIAL STABILITY.

Fear has been expressed that England might fail to meet her obligations and that the heavy strain of war would in the end bankrupt the nation, which produces the two necessities, oil and sugar, that the price of both, to the consumer, have maintained a steady low level for twenty years or more.

The world at large has little idea of the magnitude of the industrial English capital in the hands of the English colonies. Those in the aggregate amount to billions. They are exclusive of investments England has made by way of loans to other nations. England possesses, for instance, five hundred millions in bonds which represent loans she made to one of her colonies for the purpose of building and equipping a government-owned railroad system in that colony.

English capital aggregating hundreds of millions has been invested in Far Eastern properties, especially Hongkong, and the evidences of these debts are in the form of bonds. No one can tell without prolonged study the exact amount of these investments in the East. Behind these investments is actual property. English money is represented by hundreds of millions of bonds issued either by the Canadian government itself or by municipalities, provinces and railroads in Canada. Not yet, so far as the public knows, has England turned to these securities. Yet it is not unlikely that they may be made the basis, in association with American securities, in which English money is invested, upon which some form of credit or some loan may be established.

"American bankers who have accurate knowledge of the real wealth of England which is represented by investments of English money in properties, or in the obligations of her colonies, have not the slightest doubt of the ability of England, so far as her resources and riches are concerned, to meet any exigencies of the war may entail."

So far it is, after all, a question of detail, of method, of expediency, which presumably these commissioners of England and France have come to the United States to arrange."

Senator Ham Lewis, of pink whisker and fancy waistcoat fame, is again the foreign loan, because he thinks the money will go out of the country, and the shortage will create a panic.

The senator should take a day off and study the situation. The money secured by stay in this country, and help to keep our factories busy. This means steady employment to an army of American workmen. Great Britain is simply asking for an extension of time. Her credit has never been questioned, and there is no occasion to question it today. We want her trade in times of peace and are under obligations when she needs accommodations.

The American steel industry leads the world. Its capacity is equal to that of Germany, France, and Great Britain combined, and the mills are loaded with orders which will keep them busy for months to come. While many of these orders are for munitions of war, the home market is again demanding attention, and American railroads will soon be in the market as liberal buyers.

POLITICAL PROBLEMS

MUST BE SOLVED BY TEUTONS DURING WAR

Questions Over Industrial Relations Among Three Nations Need to be Settled Before Peace Comes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Sept. 20.—Few questions raised by the war are more momentous to Germany, Austria and Hungary than the future industrial relations among these three nations, or ever since Prussia as an independent state of Germany took the initiative, the problem of customs duties among them has been a moot question on which all have seldom agreed and on which they do not agree today.

The original and varying objections to a proposed "customs association" or agreement among the original independent states of Germany, Austria and Hungary eventually were swept away almost forcibly, and a union was introduced that almost immediately produced results. The varied developments of the three nations during the course of years, however, brought constant disagreement as to what the tariff conditions should be, disagreements which it is felt in many circles must be settled during the present war if at all.

Hungary at one time or another has been a persistent contender for a high protective tariff against the well-developed industry of Germany has supplied, and in consequence of which the Hungarian industry is still in its infancy. Not longer ago than last June, Hungary once more formally protested, at a meeting of the German-Austrian Economic League, against the lowering of tariffs, and pleaded even for higher customs duties than exist at present.

Not all Hungary, however, holds this view, as a very recent meeting of Hungarians in Berlin attested. The majority of the score of them, comprising the Hungarian Economic League, which with the German-Austrian organization comprises the Central European League. In spite of opposition, it was a time when a majority of the members, comprising some of Hungary's most prominent agricultural, industrial and political figures, finally went on record in favor of taking down the tariff bars among the three countries.

One of the chief arguments brought forward was that Germany and Hungary do not manufacture the same things, and that both will be benefited rather than hindered by the admission of articles that do not compete with home production.

Thus Hungary is a producer of agricultural machinery—to supply its own large needs, and without any harm to German industry introduced its product in the latter empire. Germany on the other hand makes quantities of the kind of machinery and a thousand things that are not produced in Hungary, which can be introduced at a lower tariff into that country without competing dangerously with Hungarian industry.

The argument that an understanding and agreement must be reached long rather than after the war is advanced by many, who believe that after hostilities have ceased the nations will be too busy with their renovation and rebuilding and too jealous of each other industrially ever to be able to arrive at an understanding.

Prominent Hungarians in the League, notably Mr. Lacocz, member of the Hungarian House of Representatives, hold the opposite view, however, and insist that the present time is inopportune, and that efforts to reach this branch of reform now are premature. This branch is steadfastly opposed by those who maintain that all the three countries at the present time need every advantage that can be derived from lower tariffs.

Austria, because of its half-industrial, half-agrarian nature, has always stood midway between Germany and Hungary, with a general slight leaning for the former. Such industries as she has are in the main in good condition and unlikely to be injured by a lowering of tariff walls that would permit of a German industrial invasion.

The benefits in the past from the customs union that has existed since 1834, even though through it individual went down, are sufficiently marked to induce Austrians to favor on the whole a still closer relation of this sort. Hungary is and always has been poor capitalistically, so that she has ranged on the side of the opposition.

FREIGHT RATE CASE UNDER DISCUSSION BY CLUB DIRECTORS

Chairman Jensen of Traffic Committee Brings Matter Up at First of Weekly Meetings Following Summer Recess.

The first meeting of the Commercial club directors since the summer recess was held at the club on Saturday afternoon. Several matters of importance came up for consideration and action.

A report from the traffic committee, J. K. Jensen, chairman, was read, dealing with the work of Beloit and Madison on changing the Winona freight classifications and the advisability of Janesville joining these cities in a legal battle to secure the reduction in freight rates. The benefit to the shippers and citizens as a whole would be considerable if such a reduction could be secured, but the expense attached to such a battle amounts to many hundred dollars and the committee is to make a further report as to the advisability of taking active steps.

The promotion committee reported on the new offices of the club located at the corner of East Milwaukee and North Main streets and suggested that a house-warming of some nature for the members be planned for the near future.

Exhibits of Janesville-made goods and products of Rock county will be made and manufacturers and growers are invited to bring samples of their goods and crops to the club offices for display purposes.

Secretary McDowell read an invitation from the Walworth county fair, inviting the Commercial club members to attend the fair on Friday, September 24th, Commercial club day.

The advisability of suggesting to the mayor and council the closing of the main and Milwaukee streets in the main manner Rockford brick pavements are being discussed and referred to the municipal committee.

Chairman Edward Ameripoli reported that since the opening of the rural schools twenty-five of the teachers and signed their intention of assisting in the work of beautifying the school yards.

THREE MINOR CASES BEFORE COURT TODAY

Edgerton Man Held on Serious Charges Made by Milton Junction Girl.—George Schmideley Fined.

Emil Gripe of Edgerton, was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on a statutory charge, alleged by Miss Hazel Biekle, of Milton Junction, the latest case made today in Edgerton by Constable William E. Dulin. Gripe did not deny the allegations and the court ruled that the arrest and court prosecution was for the purpose of securing the support of the expected child. Gripe was sent to the county jail not being able to furnish the five hundred dollar bail and his case set for Sept. 27th at ten o'clock. The complainant was in court this morning.

Attorney William H. Dougherty entered a plea of guilty for George Schmideley in the municipal court this morning on the charge of using abusive language and Schmideley was fined one dollar and costs amounting to $3.86, which will be paid.

The civil action case of William Cushing against E. A. Kemmerer was adjourned until Sept. 23rd. The suit is over commissions alleged by Cushing to be due him to the amount of over a hundred dollars.

The case against Frank Williams, charged with speeding, was adjourned one week. The complaining witness appeared but the court granted an adjournment.

District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie this morning appeared in the Beloit municipal court to prosecute the case against Paul Howe, charged with assault with dangerous weapons and larceny to the amount of eighty dollars in the alleged stolen hold-up. The girl held under statutory charges and the two other men, held on vagrancy charges, were taken with them to Beloit this morning from the county jail.

MILWAUKEE BRAKEMAN INJURED ON CABOOSE

Caboose Crashes Into Train of Freight Cars This Afternoon Throwing E. E. Smoot to End of Car.

E. E. Smoot of Milwaukee, a brakeman on the Prairie du Chien freight train on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul line, was injured this afternoon in an accident near the Hanson furniture factory. Smoot was on the caboose of the train and when this car had been uncoupled from the engine was sent on a flying switch to the train of cars on the main track. Smoot attempted to stop the progress of the caboose, failed to work properly and the car crashed into the freight cars with considerable force. The brakeman was thrown almost the entire length of the caboose, falling against the seats.

He was taken to the St. Paul station and later to the Mercy hospital where he was given medical attention by Dr. J. F. Penning. A hospital examination showed that the man might be suffering from internal injuries as he was bleeding from the ear and was badly bruised. No bones were broken.

BOY WITH REVOLVER WOUNDS PLAYMATE

Weapon Which Robert Pfennig Didn't Know Was Loaded Goes Off, Wounding Robert Clarida.

A revolver in the hands of Robert Pfennig, twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pfennig, accidentally discharged a bullet which inflicted a serious wound in the leg of Robert Clarida, aged twelve years, while the two boys were playing with several other companions Sunday afternoon.

The bullet struck one of the bones in the boy's leg and glanced downward toward his foot. Although the boys were quite frightened over the result of their play, they still had presence of mind enough to call a physician, and the wounded lad was hurried to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Clarida, of Fremont street.

A great profusion of blood was successful and the boy is resting quite easily today.

The unfortunate accident was another case of "I didn't know the gun was loaded," as the parents of the Pfennig boy did not know that their son had the revolver, or knew the whereabouts of the weapon which he kept in the house. There were three cartridges in the chambers.

FRIENDS IN SHOWER FOR MISS M'GINLEY IN HEART OF BATTLE

Misses Mae McKeigue and Gertrude Bradley Entertain on Saturday Evening.

At seven o'clock Saturday evening, at the Center avenue home of Miss Mae McKeigue, was the scene of a very pretty dinner party given by Miss Gertrude Bradley and Miss Mae McKeigue in honor of Miss Gertrude McGinley, a bride to be.

The house was very prettily decorated, the color scheme being pink and white, with pretty flowers and lanterns to add to its pleasing appearance.

After the five course repast the guests donned costume clothes of various colors and lauched into a very pleasing and enjoyable program, part of which, a mock marriage, was performed by the party in a form of a miscellaneous show.

The party was in form of a miscellaneous show, the bride and groom being the recipient of many and useful presents with the good wishes of her friends.

EDITORS OF STATE FORM ASSOCIATION

Hold Meeting in Sheboygan Sunday and Elect Officers and Executive Committee.

Sheboygan, Sept. 20.—At a meeting of city editors of a number of leading daily newspapers of Wisconsin held here Sunday, the Wisconsin City Editors' association organized and elected officers. The object of the association as shown in the constitution is to further the interests of the city editors to exchange ideas looking toward making the newspaper brighter and more newsy, and raise the standard of the profession.

WED SATURDAY EVE AT CHRIST CHURCH

Miss Eloise Fifield, Daughter of Judge and Mrs. C. L. Fifield, is Bride of Edgar A. Kohler.

At Christ Episcopal church on Saturday evening, September 18th, occurred the marriage of Miss Eloise Fifield, eldest daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles L. Fifield, to Edgar Arno Kohler, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kohler of this city.

Promptly at eight o'clock, to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Miss Julia Wilson, the ribbon-bearers, Miss Mayme Langford and Miss Frances Fifield, proceeded down the center aisle. Then came the ushers, Leo H. Atwood, Valentine Mott, and Edward P. Atwood. The bridesmaids—Miss Phoebe McManus and Miss Fernie Benson—followed, carrying large baskets of pink roses and white daisies. Next came the matron of honor, Mrs. Carroll W. Clark of Chicago, and the maid of honor, Miss Frances Fifield, sister of the bride, both carrying bouquets of pink roses. The bride entered on the arm of her father and was met at the altar by the groom, who was attended by the best man, Walter Kohler. The Reverend John McKinney read the marriage service.

The bride was attired in a gown of white brocade chiffon, over silk, with pearl trimmings. She wore a veil of tulle fastened with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids.

The church atter Saris were gown in different shades of pink marquisette, and the church was beautifully decorated with pink and white flowers. Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents, 201 Jackson street, and the wedding supper served, about 125 guests being present. The bride was tastefully dressed with pink and white flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Kohler departed on an automobile trip through Wisconsin, and will be gone about two weeks. The November 1st they will be home at 212 North Washington street.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kohler, Guyard, Rapier, Watertown, Wis.; Mrs. Frances Beckwith, E. F. Fifield, David Fifield, and Miss Margaret Goodwin, Beloit; Mrs. J. Marston, Madison; Mrs. Ruth Wierman, Calif.; Mrs. Platt S. Baker, Mrs. Carroll W. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sweeney, Chicago.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—"Ani" is a remarkable ruined Armenian city, the heart of the Caucasus battlefield," begins a statement issued today by the National Geographic Society.

"Its thick, crumbling walls and the ragged foundations of the city, which the Armenians have served, since the outbreak of the great war, as defenses for the Russian or Turkish soldiers, its desolate, decaying outlines type the Caucasus."

The ruins lie in a rolling, parched upland country, almost desolate. They are near the Alexandropol-Erivan railway, a little more than 30 miles south of Alexandropol, and some 35 miles from the Russo-Ottoman boundary. There is a steep rise to the south and east of the storied capital of the old Armenian kingdom, and through a tortuous gorge beside the dead city flows the Arpa Chai, a verdant, bright-green river. This is the site of the last great city of a free Armenian people.

"Ani was once a famous, splendid capital, the city with the 100 churches" whose influence extended throughout the Caucasus and as far as England in the west. All that remain of its population, are an aged Armenian monk, the director of the ruins, and a few peasants who stray to places out of the way, and a few Armenian peasants. Before the war, this population lived in peaceful isolation, among the memorials of their nation's former greatness.

"A visitor's book was kept by the monk and its early entries reach back many years. The house of the monk, headquarters and guest-house of the dead city, was a one-story, stone structure, near the cathedral. It contained one large, bare, and rather dirty room devoted to the accommodation of occasional tourists. In its four beds constituted it a bedroom: its benches made it into a dining room."

"The ancient capital was built up on a promontory out by the Arpa Chai and a small tributary stream. Across the third side, its founders had cut a ditch, making their city-fort a raised platform, which gave it great advantages for defense in the days before cannon could hurl their destruction from the neighboring heights. Ani was a strong fortress in its day, and its powerful walls, with their many towers, are still standing, strung around the plain. The walls have largely decayed, however, through the centuries in which the city has lain quiet and unpeopled."

"Back of the walls, in uneven, inherent distribution, lie the remains of churches, palaces and public places, without number, some just the heavy groundwork, suggesting old-time structures, while other buildings survive in high, rugged masonry. The cathedral stands unbroken, a solitary, weather-torn edifice, a red and brown growth out of the red and brown plain."

"The history of the later years of the Armenian kingdom is bound up in the history of Ani. The stronghold city became the capital of the Bagratid kings of Armenia

SIDE TALKS —By— RUTH CAMERON

BEING QUEER.
 "The sisters were an example to their sex. They were tall with a Roman nose apiece. They had been educated faithfully. All they did was well done. More exactly regulated feelings, manners, habits it would be difficult to find. They knew the heart's certain young ladies' school code of laws; themselves never deviated from it and they regarded with secret horror all deviations in others. The Abomination of Desolation was no mystery to them; they had discovered that Unutterable Thing in the characteristic called Originality."—George Eliot.

Yes, she's nice, but she's awfully queer," I heard one woman say of another the other day.
 "How?" I asked. I never miss an opportunity to get anyone to define that word by a concrete example of what it means to him or her.
 "Oh, she does queer things," vaguely.
 "Such as?" I persisted.
 "Well, every now and then when some delivery team stops in front of her house, I see her go out and give the horse a lump of sugar."
 "Anything else?"
 "She doesn't wear corsets."
 Further inquiry only elicited the information that she did lots of queer things, but her critic couldn't think of them at the moment.

The Accusation Boiled Down to Corsets and Sugar.
 So it boiled down to the fact that she gave horses lumps of sugar and didn't wear corsets.
 I suspect a good many accusations of queerness are founded on no more than that.

How people of the primly conventional type do seem to resent the slightest deviation from the conventional in people about them!
 The two sisters who had discovered the Abomination of Desolation in the characteristic called Originality have several million sisters of the spirit on the earth today. People like them can forgive conventional faults, selfishness, prejudice, vanity, evil-mindedness, much more easily than they can unconventional virtues. Work the law back the other way, and the sisters in horror and hiss to reach other the warning, "She's queer!" or "She's peculiar!"

And now a word to the person with a leaning towards thinking for himself, living for happiness, not for conventions, in short being "queer." Don't be too sure you can afford to do it.

Can You Afford to Be Queer?
 Why not? you ask. Well, this is the way it seems to me. The bulk of the world consists of people of the conventional type. If you are in any way dependent on them for society or for your living, you cannot afford to alienate them by too much open queerism. You may be as queer as you like inside, but your heart and mind, but if you are dependent on the bromides of the world you must inevitably conform to a certain extent to their standards.

On the other hand, if you can get your social happiness from your own family, or from people who are queer and won't resent your being so, and if your business or if your success in it depends on the approval of the rank and file, go ahead and be just as queer as you want to be. And if you are genuine in it and not a poseur, my blessing go with you.

"See!" Dick waved a draft for $30 before Nell's face. "Dividend on my oil shares."
 "Good!" Nell's eyes glowed.
 "You're not quite so big a fool as I was last summer," he gloated.
 "Oh, I'm so glad you didn't lose that money," she said.
 "Of course I didn't," he said.
 "You were worried when I thought it was all gone. Now we can have the new leather chairs for the dining room."
 "Remember, this was my personal money, not the money I invested, I've dressed respectably, too," he and of course the increase in mine to spend as I like."
 "What a splendid fellow!" Nell wouldn't like to spend for the chairs. We need them so badly," Nell smiled up hopefully into his face.

"You are very active in helping me spend my money, it appears," remarked Nell, looking up from her darning after the clock had ticked away ten silent minutes.
 "Would you mind getting your books, your housekeeping and personal account books?"
 "Why?" she queried.
 "I want to look at the footings," he answered.
 "There were to be no questions,"

HEALTH TALKS By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Twenty Years Behind the Times.
 "Heigh—Oh! What do you think of this? Here we have been busy casting ridicule and invective upon the grandmothers, figurative and literal, and endeavoring to sit in judgment upon the status of affairs medical, and now along comes a judge of us twenty years behind the times."

It was this way. While the office stenographer was out matching up some ribbons we scribbled off a short article entitled "Calomet, The Doctor's Obsession," and boldly mailed it to the editor of the greatest medical journal in this or any other world. A few days later, much to our horror, the back came the contribution with a kindly letter from the famous editor, the manuscript contained much that was instructive, etc., etc., still it did not quite, etc., etc.—you know what we mean. Then the editor went on to say that the article would have been very appropriate twenty years ago, but did we not realize that calomet is almost tabooed by the younger generation of medical men to-day?

Well, sir, you could have knocked us over with a post-card message. Wonder if the editor could have been trying to tell us our medicine was old-fashioned and we don't blame our victims for getting as mad as they oft-times do. We were mad, and we were real mad, and we were set down and punished, of a scathing rebuke to that editor—some one in his office had committed the unpardonable crime of mutilating the manuscript by punching pinholes through it. A thing no editorial office can do with our manuscripts without our hearing from us.

But anyway it is pleasant to know that the younger generation of medical practitioners is able to keep house without calomet. The young men are the ones that count in modern medicine. Nowadays, doctors do what they think is right, not what their medical ancestors believed was right. Calomet is on the scrapheap alongside of castor oil, where we think it belongs. The world revolves. It will arrive somewhere after a while. Medicine is a progressive art, though you would never suspect it by reading the patent medicine advertisements.

ONE OF THREE SISTERS SENTENCED TO DEATH ON CHARGE OF SPYING

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
 Vienna, Austria, Sept. 20.—Sentence of death for espionage has been pronounced upon Miss Sinaida Bayer, a Russian woman who has been living in the little town of Reichenberg since May, 1914. Her two sisters, Elizabeth Bayer and Marie Polakow, accused of spying have been released for lack of evidence.
 The three women moved to Reichenberg in May and astonished those whom they met by declaring that war was impending between Russia and Austria. They maintained themselves apparently by sewing and seamstress work. After their arrest, however, there were found a quantity of postal money order stubs which indicated

The Brown Haired Lady Rises To Speak.
 Have a heart. What of the brown haired readers whose locks are turning grey—what do you leave us alone with our sorrow? Are the raven haired ones to monopolize your interest? A husband's "thatch" may be scanty and white as Father Time's, but does he really admire silver threads among the brown? Nay, nay. Time was when the brown hair was a husband was to feed the brute, but in these days of affinities, the first commandment for successful housekeeping is "Doll up." So, please, dear doctor, open your big Irish heart and help restore our brown crown of glory.

Answer—We have it direct from Ponce de Leon. Boil to the consistency of an ointment 2 ounces of corticis fructus juglandis, half an ounce of galla contus, half an ounce of sodium chlorate, one ounce of grape seed and a quart of water. To dye the hair brown, saturate a cloth and pull a few strands of hair at a time through the cloth. Try it where it won't show at first, before you plunge. You know, there are divers shades of brown.

TURKISH OFFICIAL WILL VISIT GERMANY TO STUDY RELIGION
 [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
 Constantinople, Sept. 20.—Halid Sia Bey, former head of the Sultan's chancery cabinet, professor of oriental literature and history at the University of Constantinople and well known as a poet, has been commissioned by the Turkish government to make an extended trip through Germany to study the spiritual, artistic, economical and social life of the empire.
 In his quest he will visit all the principal German cities and devote particular attention to German culture. His trip will have however no political significance for he will not concern himself with questions or

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am living in a part of town where some of the neighbors are rather unkind. I am not acquainted and I am not introduced. In fact I have nothing to do with them although I have lived here a year. I have some children and our neighbor has two girls a number of years older than mine and much stronger. The children have been playing together as children will.

Now, their biggest girl is very tricky and mean. She pinches and steps on toes and then when my children do the same they're hit. The other day she hit me in the back of the neck so the skin was all blue with blood in under the skin. And just a while ago my boy came in the house bleeding of mouth and nose. He had been riding on a "wagon" and as he passed the girl stuck him in the face without reason. He makes faces at me and my husband and tries to make trouble, but we pay no attention.

And the worst is, when these girls hit my children their parents will stand and laugh. And if my husband calls them to reason they will fight and also act like they were insane. They know they are in the wrong, I sometimes wonder about their sanity. Can you imagine the hardships and heart aches we have to endure just to keep peace? Can you tell me of any possible steps I could take, or should I ignore their presence? I am afraid my children will be seriously hurt. These people are known as fighters, and their male folks hit the minister when he tried to make peace.

Better see the prosecuting attorney.

they had received funds from other sources.
 With the beginning of the war, the captured Russians were imprisoned in a camp at Roenthal, not far from Reichenberg, and the sisters aroused suspicion by secret communications with the captive soldiers. One of them, from unknown motives, notified the Austrian officers, and the women's arrest followed immediately.
 Their trial, which has just been completed in Theresienstadt, resulted in the conviction of Miss Sinaida Bayer and her condemnation to death by hanging.

Keep a Memorandum.
 Keep a little notebook on your library shelf if you are in the habit of lending your books to your friends. Have it alphabetically arranged and every time you lend a book put down the name of the friend to whom you gave it, together with the title of the book. It is only a matter of a minute to do this and saves lots of time and worry over trying to locate missing books.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am almost twenty-one years old. I am a year ago last summer a man twenty-seven years old seemed to like me very well and we had some nice times together going buggy riding and to picnics. Now, all of a sudden this young man stopped going with me and I did not hear from him for a long time. He had a pocket book of mine with only fifty cents in it, but still I thought it was his place to return it. He didn't do a thing though until the first of the year when he sent me a leather copy of "The Other Wise Man" and my pocket book. I wrote him a letter and thanked him and asked him to come and see me when he could. He lives in another town. I got no answer to that letter, but the first of July I got a letter from him not paying any attention to what I had said and only mentioning that he had received my letter. I did not answer his letter. Since then I have learned that I care for this young man and I do not know what to do. How can I win his love? DEJECTED.

Unless the man cares for you of his own free will, there is no way you can win his love. Give him up, dear. You are very young and will love again, I am sure.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sixteen years old and I will be a sophomore in high school. I do not know if it would be better for me to quit school and take piano lessons or go to school until I graduate. I have never taken any lessons, but I would like to learn to play so that I can be a music teacher. Would you advise me to quit school and take piano lessons? MARYBELLE.

Finish high school so that you will have an education. If you should take up music and make a success of it you would be at a loss for something to do, while with a high school education there are many things to which you can turn. Successful pianists usually start to take lessons when they are seven or eight years old.

Household Hints

VASELINE ON SHOES.
 Use vaseline as a dressing for patent leather shoes and they will not crack so easily. Put the vaseline on before the shoes are worn and about once each week—no other dressing will be needed. If the shoes are warmed slightly before putting them on they will last much longer.

SOUTHERN DISH.
 Kentucky Scalloped Potatoes—Slice potatoes and lay in the water half an hour. Place a layer of potatoes in a well buttered baking dish, sprinkle with pepper, salt and pieces of butter, repeat the process until there is a sufficient quantity. Pour over this enough milk to cover and bake an hour and a half or until the potatoes are thoroughly cooked. If the potatoes are liked with the potatoes, alternate layers may be used.

BREAKFAST TRAY.
 The plan of serving individual breakfast trays to guests in dining rooms is increasing in popularity, and for this polking is more satisfactory than the set made of enameled ware. The tray, covered with a lace trimmings, is thoroughly cooked, its little sugar and pitcher of hot milk, its pot of coffee or tea holding only two cups, all in a dainty, pretty design and indestructible in their daintiness.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.
 Two Dry Sweet Corn—Take young tender ears, scrape from cob. Place about one quart of corn in a saucepan heat very hot until all milk of corn has been heated thoroughly, stirring constantly; then spread on plates and dry in oven with moderate heat. Stir occasionally. When corn is dry enough, so as not to stick together, place it in a pan on back of range and let it stand for several hours before putting in jars.
 Canned Peaches—Take one-half bushel ripe tomatoes. Scald, peel and cut them into pieces. Put on to boil and stir constantly so as to avoid burning. When boiled up put in a growth Chandler. Put on to boil again, take off scum which forms, then add following ingredients:
 On heaping teaspoon salt, one heaping tablespoon ground cinnamon, one heaping teaspoon allspice, one heaping teaspoon cloves, one level teaspoon red pepper, 1 1/2 cups sugar, one cup white vinegar or cider vinegar, three medium-sized onions, chopped fine. Boil this until real thick. Put into pint fruit jars and seal tight.
 The average number of pint jars from one-half bushels nice ripe tomatoes is nine, and the cost, about thirty-five cents for the finished product.

Indian Relish.—One peck green tomatoes, one-half cup salt; chop and let drain over night. In morning add following items (chopped): One medium-size head cabbage, six medium-size onions, three red peppers, two green peppers, one medium bunch celery, five cups sugar, two tablespoons whole celery seed, two tablespoons mustard seed, two tablespoons cloves tied in a bag. Boil in three quarts vinegar for one-half hour or until oil is set.

 Cabbage and Sweet Corn Relish—One dozen ears corn; pour boiling water over corn and let stand covered off the cob. One large cabbage cut off the core. One large cabbage cut fine, two or three red peppers (small ones) chopped fine, one teaspoon celery seed, one tablespoon salt, three points vinegar, 2 1/2 cups brown sugar, one small box dry mustard. Mix well and boil twenty minutes. Should be covered with vinegar. Put in sealed bottles.
 To seal catsup and grape juice bottles without corks, take three inch square piece of strong white cloth; heat sealing wax and while hot apply to center of cloth. Put it immediately on top of bottle, press down firmly to make airtight. Turn down corners of cloth with twine. Then dip neck of bottle in hot sealing wax to give outer coating. To break seal, cut with a sharp knife. Break wax with a quick twist of the hand or dip in hot water. No corks or cork-screw is necessary.

Mold on Books.
 During continued damp weather books often become musty and even moldy. This can be prevented by placing a few drops of oil of lavender and Canada balsam in the back corner of each bookshelf.

"Who's going to prevent me?"

"I am, by laying an information against him this minute, unless you promise never to see or to speak to Cazale again."

Blanche felt cold and sick, but the bit of downright bullying did her good. "I didn't know you were a black-maller, Mr. Toye!"

"You know I'm not; but I mean to save you from Cazale, blackmail or white."

"To save me from a mere old friend—nothing more—nothing—all our lives!"

"I believe that," he said, searching her, with his smoldering eyes. "You couldn't tell a lie, I guess, not if you tried! But you would do something; it's just a man being next door to hell that would bring a God's angel! His voice shook.

She was as quick to soften on her side.

"Don't talk nonsense, please," she begged, forcing a smile through her distress. "Will you promise to do nothing if—I promise?"

"Not to go near him?"

"No."

"Nor to see him here?"

"No."

"Nor anywhere else?"

"No. I give you my word."

"If you break it, I break mine that minute? Is it a deal that way?"

"Yes! Yes! I promise!"

"Then so do I, by God!" said Hilton Toye.

CHAPTER XIII.

Faith Unfaithful.

"It's all perfectly true," said Cazale calmly. "Those were my movements while I was off the ship, except for the five hours and a bit that I was away from Charing Cross. I can't dispute a detail of all the rest. But they'll have to fill in those five hours unless they want another case to coil-tape like the one against Scruton!"

Old Savage had wriggled like a venerable worm, in the experienced talons of the Bobby's Bugbear; but then Mr. Drinkwater and his discoveries had made him still worse out of a hotter encounter with the truculent attorney; and Cazale had described the whole thing as only he could describe a given episode, down to the ultimate dismissal of the charge against Scruton, with a gusto the more cynical for the deliberately low pitch of his voice.

It was in the little lodging-house sitting room at Nell Gwynne's Cottages; he stood with his back to the crackling fire that he had just lighted himself, as it were, already at bay; for the folding doors were in front of his nose, and his eyes roved incessantly from the landing door on one side to the curtained casement on the other. Yet sometimes he paused to gaze at the friend who had come to warn him of his danger; and there was nothing cynical or grim about him then.

Blanche had broken her word for perhaps the first time in her life; but it had never before been extorted from her by duress, and it would be attestation to credit her with much compunction on the point. Her one great qualm lay in the possibility of Toye's turning up at any moment; but this she had obliterated to some extent by coming straight to the cottages when he left her—presumably to look for Cazale in London, since she had been careful not to mention his change of address. Cazale, to her relief, but also a little to her hurt, she had found at his lodgings in the neighborhood, full of the news he had not managed to communicate to her. But it was no time for taking anything but his peril to heart. And that they had been discussing, almost as man to man, if rather as innocent man to innocent man; for even now, or perhaps now in his presence least of all, Blanche could not bring herself to believe her old friend guilty of a violent crime, however unpremeditated, for which another had been allowed to suffer, for however short a time.

And yet he seemed to make no secret of it; and yet—it did explain his whole conduct since landing, as Toye had said.

She could only shut her eyes to what must have happened, even as Cazale himself had shut his all this wonderful week, that she had forgotten all day in her ingratitude, but would never, in all her days, forget again!

"There won't be another case," she heard herself saying, while her thoughts ran ahead or lagged behind like sheep. "I'll never come out—I know it, won't."

"Why shouldn't it?" he asked so sharply that she had to account for the words, to herself as well as to him.

"Nobody knows except Mr. Toye, and he means to keep it to himself."

"Why should he?"

"I don't know. He'll tell you himself."

"Are you sure you don't know? What can he have to tell me? Why should he screen me, Blanche?"

His eyes and voice were furious with suspicion, but still the voice was lowered.

"He's a jolly good sort, you know," said Blanche, as if the whole affair was the most ordinary one in the world. But heroics could not have driven the sense of her remark more forcibly home to Cazale.

"Oh, he is, is he?"

"I've always found him so."

"So have I, the little I've seen of him. And I don't blame him for getting on my tracks, mind you; he's a bit of a detective, I was fair game, and he did warn me in a way. That's why I meant to have the week—" He stopped and looked away.

"I know. And nothing can undo that," she only said; but her voice swelled with thanksgiving. And Cazale looked reassured; the hot suspicion died out of his eyes, but left them gloomily perplexed.

"Still, I can't understand it. I don't believe it, either! I'm in his hands. What have I done to be saved by Toye? He's probably scouring London for me—if he isn't watching this window at this minute!"

"He went to the curtains as he spoke. Simultaneously Blanche sprang up, to entreat him to fly while he could. That had been her first object in coming to him as she had done, and yet, once with him, she had left it to the last! And now it was too late; he was at the window, chuckling significantly to himself; he had opened it, and he was leaning out.

"That you, Toye, down there? Come up and show yourself! I want to see you."

He turned in time to dart in front of the folding doors as Blanche reached them, white and shuddering. The flush of impulsive bravado fled from his face at the sight of hers.

"You can't go in there. What's the matter?" he whispered. "Why should you be afraid of Hilton Toye?"

How could she tell him? Before she had found a word, the landing door opened, and Hilton Toye was in the room, looking at her.

"Keep your voice down," said Cazale anxiously. "Even if it's all over with me but the shouting, we needn't start the shouting here!"

He chuckled savagely at the jest; and now Toye stood looking at him.

"I've heard all you've done," continued Cazale. "I don't blame you a bit. If it had been the other way about, I might have given you less run for your money. I've heard what you've found out about my mysterious movements, and you're absolutely right as far as you go. You don't know why I took the train at Naples, and traveled across Europe without a hand-bag. It wasn't quite the put-up job you may think. But, if it makes you any happier, I may as well tell you that I was at Uplands that night, and I did get out through the foundations!"

The insane impetuosity of the man was his master now. He was a living fire of impulse that had burst into a blaze.

"I always guessed you might be crazy, and I now know it," said Hilton Toye. "Still, I judge you're not so crazy as to deny that while you were in that house you struck down Henry Craven and left him for dead?"

Cazale stood like red-hot stone. "Miss Blanche," said Toye, turning to her rather shyly. "I guess I can't do what I said just yet. I haven't breathed a word, not yet, and perhaps I never will, if you'll come away with me now—back to your home—and never see Henry Craven's murderer again!"

"And who may he be?" cried a voice that brought all three faces about.

The folding-doors had opened, and a fourth figure was standing between the two rooms.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Person Unknown.

The intruder was a shaggy elderly man, of so odorous an aspect that his face alone cried for his death-bed; and his gaunt frame took up the cry, as it swayed upon the threshold in dressing-gown and bedroom slippers that Toye instantly recognized as belonging to Cazale. The man had a shock of almost white hair, and a less gray beard clipped roughly to a point. An unwholesome pallor marked the fallen features, and the envenomed eyes burned low in their sockets, as they dealt with Blanche but fastened on Hilton Toye.

"What do you know about Henry Craven's murderer?" he demanded in a voice between a croak and a crow. "Have they run in some other poor devil, or were you talking about me? If so, I'll start a libel action, and call Cazale and that lady as witnesses!"

"This is Scruton," explained Cazale, "who was only liberated this evening after being detained a week on a charge that ought never to have been brought, as I've told you both all along." Scruton thanked him with a bitter laugh.

"I've brought him here," concluded Cazale, "because I don't think he's fit enough to be about alone."

"Nice of him, isn't it?" said Scruton bitterly. "I'm so fit that they wanted to keep me somewhere else longer than they'd any right; that may be why they lost no time in getting hold of me again. Nice, considerate, kindly country! Ten years isn't long enough to have you as a dishonored guest. Won't you come back for another week, and see if we can't arrange for a nice little sudden death and burial for you? But they couldn't see you, blast 'em!"

He subsided into the best chair in the room, which Blanche had wheeled up behind him; a moment later he looked round, thanked her curtsy, and lay back with closed eyes until suddenly he opened them on Cazale.

"And what was that that you were saying—that about traveling across Europe and being at Uplands that night? I thought you came round by sea? And what night do you mean?"

"The night it all happened," said Cazale steadily.

"You mean the night some person unknown knocked Craven on the head?"

"Yes."

"Then he isn't unknown to you?"

"I didn't see him well."

Scruton looked sharply at the two mute listeners. They were very intent, indeed. "Who are these people, Cazale? No! I know one of 'em," he answered himself in the next breath. "It's Blanche Macnair, isn't it? I thought at first it must be a younger sister grown up like her. You'll forgive prison manners, Miss Macnair, if that's still your name. You look a woman to trust—if there is one—and you gave me your chair. Anyhow, you're been in for a penny and you can stay in for a pound, as far as I care! But who's your American friend, Cazale?"

"Mr. Hilton Toye, who spotted that I'd been all the way to Uplands and back when I claimed to have been in Rome!"

There was a touch of Scruton's bitterness in Cazale's voice; and by some subtle process it had a distinctly mollifying effect on the really embittered man.

"What on earth were you doing at Uplands?" he asked, in a kind of confidential bewilderment.

"I went down to see a man."

Toye himself could not have cut and measured more deliberate monosyllables.

"Craven?" suggested Scruton.

"No; a man I expected to find at Craven's."

"The writer of the letter you found at Cook's office in Naples the night you landed there, I guess!"

It really was Toye this time, and there was no guesswork in his tone. Obviously he was speaking by his little book, though he had not got it out again.

"How do you know I went to Cook's?"

"I know every step you took between the Kaiser Fritz and Charing Cross and Charing Cross and the Kaiser Fritz!"

Scruton listened to this interchange with keen attention, hanging on each man's lips with his sunken eyes; both took it calmly, but Scruton's surprise was not hidden by a sardonic grin.

"You've evidently had a stern chase with a Yankee clipper!" said he. "If he's right about the letter, Cazale, I should say so; presumably it wasn't from Craven himself?"

"No."

"Yet it brought you across Europe to Craven's house?"

"Well—to the back of his house! I expected to meet my man on the river."

"Was that how you missed him more or less?"

"I suppose it was."

Scruton ruminated a little, broke into his offensive laugh, and checked it instantly of his own accord. "This is really interesting," he croaked. "You got to London—at what time was it?"

"Nominally three-twenty-five; but the train ran thirteen minutes late," said Hilton Toye.

"And you're on the river by what time?" Scruton asked Cazale.

"I walked over Hungerford bridge, took the first train to Surbiton, got a boat there, and just dropped down with the stream. I don't suppose the whole thing took me very much more than an hour."

"What Do You Know About Henry Craven's Murderer?"

"Aren't you forgetting something?" said Toye.

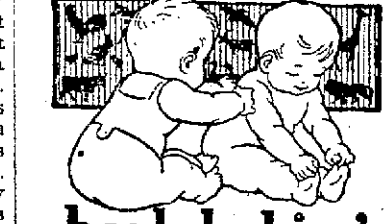

"Yes, I was. It was I who telephoned to the house and found that Craven was out motoring; so there was no hurry."

And the Rose Has Its Thorn.

Successful conservation has its penalties. The beaver is doing an immense amount of damage in the Adirondack region, while in Pennsylvania the elimination of forest fires has caused the rattlesnake to multiply in great numbers.—Rochester Herald.

Resinol

heals babies' skin troubles

Babies with eczema, teething rash, chafing, and other tormenting skin troubles need Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. They soothe and heal the irritated skin, stop all itching, and let the little sufferers sleep. Babies bathed regularly with Resinol Soap seldom have skin eruptions.

Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap have been used by physicians and nurses for many years, and contain nothing which could possibly injure or irritate the tenderest skin. Sold by all druggists.

Dinner Stories

Two Irishmen sailed forth one day in search of sport. They were armed with guns and huge game bags, and as it was their first venture at shooting they were tremendously keen.

Suddenly Meehan spotted a bird, and, taking very careful aim, prepared to fire the fatal shot. Then Fergus seized him by the arm frantically, crying:

"Fer th' mercy's sake, don't fire, Meehan! Shure an' ye've forgotten to load yer gun!"

"That's as it may be, me lad," rejoined Meehan, "but fire I must! Begorra, th' burrod won't wait!"

A farmer visited New York city, and among other things, he wandered into a woman's exchange on 23d street.

After a few moments of staring about at the things on display, he sized up several women attendants behind the railing.

"So this is the woman's exchange," he said, thoughtfully.

"Yes, this is the woman's exchange," came the reply. "What can I do for you?"

"An' you all are the wimmen?"

"Yes."

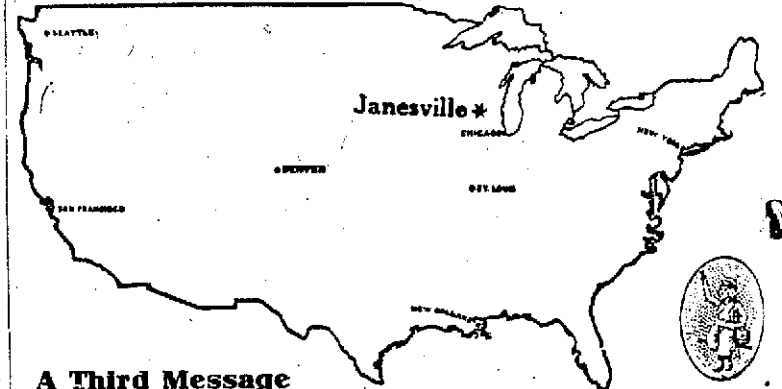

"Wal, I guess I'll keep my Maria!"

At the head of an insurance company, he decided to visit one of the districts which showed a falling off in business and quietly investigate.

While thus engaged, he was asked how his company found business, speaking for itself. "Oh, we will be about a half a million ahead the first half of this year," he replied. "Ahead of what?"

"Why, ahead of the undertaker."

A Third Message To the Business Men of Janesville

Prosperity and local pride are twins. They are born at the same time and grow up together. Enthusiasm for the home town is a great thing for local business men. Once developed, this feeling shows direct returns in more sales and bigger profits.

Have you ever seen a shabby town proud, or prosperous? Good paint is a powerful factor in keeping prosperity after a community has won it.

A Dollar Saved Is Two Earned

I am interested in the above, but don't fully realize it. If I did I would certainly be more careful where I buy and what I get for my $.

Take for example shoes. How much do I pay annually for shoes, and do I get as good value for my money? Just so Dry Goods, Hosiery, Underwear, Corsets, Gent's Furnishings, Boys' Suits, Blankets, Comforters and all that enter into the necessities of every day life.

If you are really interested in saving $'s make your next purchase at No. 22 S. River St. Janesville, Wis., where you save from 10 to 25 per cent on every article you buy.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Sept. 20, 1915.—The first ice of the season was seen at Koschkonong on Saturday. The cotton factory has stopped for a day or two for the purpose of having the shafting and the water wheels readjusted, so that with the same amount of water, more power can be had.

During the past twenty-four hours the water has raised considerably in the river. This morning it was rushing over the dam in a lively manner, although the dam was raised six inches last week.

The case of the state against Mahan, for assault on Dr. Finch, is now being tried in Justice Patten's court. Quite a large crowd visited the court room to hear the evidence. The case drags slowly and we are unable to give any particulars.

Fred Prentice, our gallant young druggist, returned from Chicago today, where he went on Saturday.

Long Branch, Sept. 20.—President Grant and family will leave here in a special palace car on Thursday next and go direct to Colorado.

Omaha, Sept. 20.—A heavy frost, the first of the season in this section, occurred last night. Everything is said to be out of danger. The weather is remarkably cool, but clear.

SUFFS IN LIMELIGHT BY EDITING PAPER

Do All Work Today on Issue of Bulletin at San Francisco.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

San Francisco, Sept. 20.—A column about performances of local women swimmers, head sporting page of the "Bulletin" edition of the San Francisco Bulletin, edited today by Mrs. O. H. Belmont, of New York, on behalf of the congressional union for women suffrage.

Contributions for women about women and woman's suffrage filled most of the rest of the paper.

The cartoon, drawn by a woman, showed Uncle Sam for-bidding with a stumpy-dressed man labeled Susan B. Anthony amendment while Miss Referendum, much befuddled, was a wall-flower.

THE GOLDEN EAGLE LEVY'S

Presentation of the Modes For Autumn

—Being a Faithful and Complete Portrayal of Fashion's Inside Story To Date.

"Inside story" is used advisedly, for back of the usual and universal froth there is—within the exclusive circles of fashion—a well-defined basis of style agreement.

It has become more the difficult for women to discern the questionable from the unquestionable in style, by reason of the indiscriminate use and misuse of the names of fashion creators.

So it is The Golden Eagle renders a most important service in presenting a thoroughly Fashion-censored collection of modes; by offering for the approval of the women of Janesville and Southern Wisconsin the smartest, the most wearable creations from the simplest to the richest in

Tailored and Demi-Tailored Suits

Coats for Street, Motor or Sports Wear

Dresses For Morning, Afternoon Or Evening Wear

Many are copies of foreign models, others are clever American conceptions, all are unquestionably authoritative, personally selected by Mr. Bridges—from the least expensive to the higher cost models. The usual price range, but unusual values at each price.

CALL UP CHILDREN IN PATRIOTIC DUTY TO FIND BEECH NUTS.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Essen, Germany, Sept. 20.—The school authorities of Westphalia have notified the school children of the district that they can perform a patriotic duty by collecting beech nuts, from which it is possible to extract a table oil that is said to be a good substitute for the foreign oil—particularly Italian—that always have been imported. There exists in the province establishment for extracting the oil from the nuts, for earlier this line in Westphalia. The authorities of the district are so impressed with the suggestion of the school authorities that they are furthering the proposition as far as possible.
